Power-Plex Moves to New Larger Headquarters.

Dublin, 2008: Power-Plex Technologies, the international security power supply manufacturer, has just purchased a new 10,000sq. ft. headquarters on the outskirts of Dublin, in order to increase production in line with growing demand.

The move became necessary due to impressive growth during 2006 and 2007, particularly in the European and North American markets where a number of major multi-national customers contracted for Power-Plex products, several of them on an OEM basis, and numerous independent European distributors took on the range. Power-Plex is now rapidly becoming the world's No.1 supplier of power supplies for security, CCTV, Fire and Access Control applications.

Over the past couple of years the company has introduced numerous new products ranging from Switch Mode power supplies, single camera encapsulated CCTV units, and a range of Rack Mounting models many of which have already been installed in airports, sports stadiums, and other major integrated security projects around Ireland, the UK, Europe, the Middle East and North America.

New products to comply with UL/ULC standards in North America, and the European EN.50131 (intruder) and EN.54 (fire) standards have been launched or are in the pipeline for launch in 2008.

So, the company is looking forward to another year of substantial growth in all its markets, and the recent opening of its China factory should make Power-Plex products among the most competitive in the world.

The Hong Kong connection

Power-Plex Hong Kong is pleased to bring on board as Director Mr Man Ching Man, who will be in charge of co-ordinating all our Asian operations for the future. Mr Man, who is a successful Hong Kong businessman in his own right, will chart the Power-Plex groups future plans for the Asia region.

Power-Plex People....

Selvaduri Selvathilagan is the Production Manager in Power-Plex Canada. Selva, as he is known, hails from Sri Lanka, and has been with the company for three years. He has worked in the UK before coming to Canada and is married with two children. His interests are travel, music and devoting time to his family.

Power-Plex Canada moves.

Power-Plex Electronics, the Toronto based Nth American headquarters of the group moved premises in early 2007. The lease had expired on the current premises and so the company had to move a short distance – in fact, just across the road!

The new address is 2885, Argentia Road, Unit 4, Mississauga, Ontario L5N 8G6. The phone, fax and email stay the same.

The new SMM range. Power-Plex recently introduced a new Switch Mode DC range of power supplies which range from 3 Amps up to 16 Amps and can be supplied with multiple fused outputs (5, 10, 15 or 20 fused outputs, LED indicating and with either traditional glass fuses or the new PTC re-settable 'smart' fuses). Being very competitively priced, they have proved very popular with many international customers, particularly for CCTV applications.

Power-Plex China Factory begins operations
